BIODIVERSITY - EXCURSION AROUND THE MER DE GLACE GLACIER

Duration: 3

Fitness: ▲▲▲▲▲ Technique: ▲▲▲▲▲

Price from: 820 €

THE BALCONIES OF THE MER DE GLACE

High above the Mer de Glace, the balcony trails offer an exceptional journey into the heart of the Mont Blanc massif. Over 3 days, you will cross glacier terrain, moraines and steep mountain trails to reach the Charpoua and Couvercle huts. The route includes long sections of ladders and is designed for experienced hikers comfortable on steep mountain trails, but no previous mountaineering experience is required.

OBSERVE A CHANGING MOUNTAIN ENVIRONMENT

This journey is also an opportunity to discover alpine flora and observe how the mountain environment is changing. Accompanied by a mountain guide, you will learn about the effects of glacier retreat and the gradual evolution of vegetation at altitude in an environment particularly affected by climate change.

ITINERARY

Day 1

Ascent to the Charpoua Hut (2,841 m)

We take the cog railway to Montenvers (1,913 m), then the gondola down to the Mer de Glace. After crossing the glacier, the first ladders mark the beginning of our ascent towards the balcony trails. A steep mountain path with further ladder sections leads through the Charpoua cirque to the hut, located at 2,841 m in a wild valley surrounded by the peaks of the Mont Blanc massif.

Vertical ascent: 1,150 m

Day 2

Traverse to the Couvercle Hut (2,679 m)

Before heading towards the Couvercle Hut, we climb above Charpoua in search of Saussure's androsace, a rare alpine flower found in the Western Alps. We then join the Couvercle trail, which traverses the slopes of the Aiguille du Moine. The narrow, steep route combines mountain trails and ladder sections, with extensive views over the Mer de Glace and surrounding peaks. We finish the day at the Couvercle Hut, at 2,679 m.

Vertical ascent: 500 m – Vertical descent: 700 m

Day 3

Return to Montenvers

Depending on conditions and the level of the group, we either return directly to the Mer de Glace or extend the route with a detour towards the Leschaux Hut. This wilder option offers remarkable views of the Grandes Jorasses and explores another part of the Mer de Glace basin. We then return to the glacier before taking the gondola and Montenvers train back to Chamonix.

Vertical descent: 1,000 m
