MOUNTAINEERING - WINTER MOUNTAINEERING COURSE

Duration: 3

Fitness: ▲▲▲▲▲ Technique: ▲▲▲▲▲

Price from: 775 €

Our Winter Mountaineering Course is the seasonal counterpart of our Autonomy & Safety - Level 2 course within our mountaineering program. It focuses on ridge climbing techniques in mixed conditions. A hallmark of our courses, the exclusive ratio of 3 to 4 participants per guide ensures personalized coaching and a program tailored to your needs. This course is ideal for those looking to progress step by step, through a learning process focused on self-reliance.

The course is centered on mixed ridge climbs. After one day dedicated to ice climbing, you will move on to ascents either in the Vallée Blanche area or in the Aiguilles Rouges. Enrollment requires essential prerequisites to ensure optimal skills development: you must master belaying techniques in a climbing setting (including abseiling) and be able to lead climb at French grade 4c. Ideally, you have completed our Autonomy & Safety Level 1 course or an equivalent. For beginners wishing to discover winter mountaineering, we recommend our Ice Climbing Discovery Course or our Ice Climbing Day.

Objectives of the Winter Mountaineering Course

- Mastery of the fundamental techniques of ice climbing
- Mastery of basic safety techniques for mixed ridge climbing
- Risk management: decision-making tools

ITINERARY

Day 1

Ice-Climbing

Ice climbing at the Bérard ice climbing area in Vallorcine. Depending on conditions, this day may take place on the Mer de Glace.
