ITINERARY

Day 1

Surrier, Valgrisenche - Refuge Mario Bezzi

We start our stay in Surrier, at the end of the Valgrisenche valley. A long track, followed by a good path, takes us gradually up this deep valley to the Mario Bezzi hut (2284 m). We're in a glacial cirque surrounded by countless 3000 m peaks. Once we've got the lay of the land, we climb up to Lac Vuert (2620 m) to stretch our legs and enjoy the wild scenery.

Ascent: 850m - Descent: 400m - 9 km

Positive elevation gain: 2789ft - Negative elevation gain: 1312ft - 5.6 miles

Day 2

Refuge Mario Bezzi - Refuge Benevolo

We climb gradually up the slope to reach the moraine of the impressive Gliaietta glacier, which we skirt to reach the Col Bassac Derè (3082 m), today's summit. A descent through scree quickly takes us to the Lac de Goletta, at the foot of the glacier of the same name. The sight of this white glacier and its lake is dazzling! We finish the descent to reach the Benevolo hut (2287 m), the starting point for a number of hikes in the area.

Positive elevation gain: 2789ft - Negative elevation gain: 2789ft - 6.8 miles

Day 3

Refuge Benevolo - Refuge Tétrás Lyre

We have a long day ahead of us today. The hike begins with an ascent to Col Rosset (3025 m), a spectacular passage between the rocks. We've entered Europe's oldest national park. The descent to the Savoia hut takes us through the magnificent Rosset lakes, a breathtaking panorama. Following the Doire du Nivolet, we now arrive in a vast, deserted steppe landscape. Here we have to choose between continuing down the valley to the hamlet of Le Pont, or climbing back up to Grand Collet (2832 m), a formidable lookout point on the summit of Grand Paradis, where it's not unusual to come face to face with ibex. A beautiful descent takes us to the Tétrás Lyre refuge (1991 m), where we spend the night. Luggage access.

Positive elevation gain: 2953ft - Negative elevation gain: 3937ft - 13 miles

Day 4

Refuge Tétrás Lyre - Refuge Vittorio Emanuele II

Refuge Tetras Lyre - Refuge Vittorio Emanuele II

Accompanied by two mountain guides and equipped with the appropriate mountaineering gear, we slowly make our way to the Gran Paradiso base camp: the Vittorio Emanuele II hut (2719 m). After dropping off our packs, our guides give us crampon handling exercises and short rappels. It's time to rest up and get ready for tomorrow's big challenge!

Positive elevation gain: 2460ft - Negative elevation gain: 0ft - 2.5 miles

Day 5

Gran Paradiso ascent: Return to Chamonix

A day dedicated to mountaineering, with the ascent of Gran Paradiso (4,061 m). After waking up in the middle of the night, we climb by the light of our headlamps to reach the summit. The descent takes place in the morning, and we return to Tetras Lyre refuge by early afternoon. From there, we head back to Chamonix.
