Level 2 Training Course - Autonomy and Safety in Bivouac

Duration : 3 days / 2 nights in bivouac

For whom ? Beginner or intermediate hikers wishing to master the basics of self-reliance in the mountains.

Guiding : Certified mountain guide. Maximum 6 people per guide.

Learning objectives : This course will equip you with the essential skills to navigate independently in the mountains: preparing your hike and equipment, navigation, setting up camp, managing natural resources, and understanding the mountain environment.

Ideal for hikers wishing to become more self-reliant and safer during their bivouac treks.

PROGRAM / TOPICS COVERED :

Preparing for your hike : selecting the right equipment, packing your bag...

Autonomy in bivouac : setting up camp

Orientation : validate the skills acquired during the level 1 training course, further development of map reading (micro-relief)

Mountain environment : naturalist notions, respect for biodiversity

Miscellaneous : management of natural resources

The program is given for information purposes only. Your guide may modify it depending on the level of the group and the conditions of the mountain.

ITINERARY

Day 1

Departure into the Unknown

We begin our day at the Chamonix Guides Company headquarters with a briefing to check the mandatory equipment. This allows us to ensure everything is in order and also to distribute the food prepared by your guide.

We then set off towards a less-traveled mountain range, such as the Aravis, Bauges, or Beaufortain, for a complete immersion in nature.

The first day is generally short, allowing us to quickly find a bivouac site where the guide will teach you the basics of tent and camp setup. We will also learn to find water and discuss the concept of natural resources and their management.

With our first night under the stars fast approaching, it will be time to prepare our first meal and quickly snuggle into our sleeping bags for the night.

Day 2

Getting Lost to Find Yourself

We pack up camp carefully and meticulously. The goal: to leave no trace.

Then we set off for a beautiful day during which we'll learn how to use our map. This is a Level 2 course, so the basic techniques have already been validated; we'll focus on the terrain and characteristic features of the landscape that we can identify on a map.

We'll navigate from point to point, guided by your instructor, who will assess your level of independence in map reading and compass use.

During the day, your instructor will also share some naturalist knowledge to help you find edible berries and plants. Nature offers countless possibilities! This is also an opportunity to discuss environmental awareness and practical skills, and thus provide you with the foundations for respecting biodiversity, its needs, and how we use it.

In the late afternoon, a beautiful and long day comes to an end; it's time to prepare camp for the night.

Day 3

Back to reality

The night must have been beautiful and peaceful, judging by the first two days. It's time to return to the car we parked on the first day. We'll use the map again to retrace our steps, but not on the same path. We'll discover new areas and new learning opportunities. Once you reach the car at the end of the day, you'll be completely self-sufficient for your independent bivouac trek.
